Page 1 is 612 by 792 points. By evening the market stalls were gone, and only the smell of bread and oranges remained in the square. Children walked to school along the canal, counting boats and arguing about which one was the fastest.

Page 2 is 595.28 by 841.89 points. The library kept its doors open until nine, which made it the warmest place in town during the winter. Some people said the town had not changed in a century, while others insisted that everything was different now.

Page 3 is 792 by 612 points. Every Friday the musicians gathered near the fountain and played songs that their grandparents had taught them. Every Friday the musicians gathered near the fountain and played songs that their grandparents had taught them.

Page 4 is 200 by 300 points. The river town woke slowly, and the baker opened his shutters before the first cart rolled over the bridge. Engineers measured the water level every morning and wrote the numbers in a book that nobody else read.

Page 5 is 612 by 3000 points. In the afternoon the light turned gold, and the old clock in the square ran four minutes late, as it always had. Engineers measured the water level every morning and wrote the numbers in a book that nobody else read.